Judge, all 4 of us discussed it this afternoon and we think it can be revised to have less risk of trouble from the Ethics Commission if there is a complaint.

FYI, if either of you wants to call me, I'm available by cell. Should I ditch it altogether, or are there edits I can make which would make it more allowable?

Judge,
We are researching it and have some concerns about the tone and style in which you worded your draft newsletter. Erich is still looking at Ethics Commission opinions and we would ask you to allow us an opportunity to discuss our concerns with you tomorrow before you send it. You may also wish to review the attached rule.

Lee,

As I'm working through the draft, I'm thinking of adding the following points, fyi:

- We haven't just approached this compensation strategy here at the County, but the court has been very supportive of UMC's efforts to raise wages as well AND we are engaged in a prevailing wage rate survey that we believe will lift wages in the private sector with those who work on our construction contracts;

- We are able to implement our compensation strategy without raising taxes because of some of the hard decisions we and other county leaders have been making that have saved us money;
- I also want to add a question, "Isn't this just a part-time job" to clarify that it's actually a pretty big, full-time job.

Thanks for looking into this for me. If I can't do it via the county email, I'll use a non-public email.

Your private email or your county email?

I'm planning on sending it out via email, and if possible, putting it on my page on our website.

Importance: High

Judge, are you planning to mail this out or are you just going to put it on the county's website?

Betsy, Wally, Melissa, Lee,

Attached is very rough draft (I just typed it out quickly yesterday and wrapped up this morning) of a newsletter I'd like to send out to constituents explaining the salary increases and putting them in the context of our compensation strategy and budget.

1. Betsy, Wally and Melissa, can you please help me fact check?
2. Wally, can you help me with the two graphs that I mention in there?
3. Lee, I want to make sure I'm not violating any rules with this. It's not political in nature at all; I'm simply explaining a vote and policy adopted by the court. However, I want to just make sure I'm not crossing any lines.

I know everyone is swamped, but if you have time today or this evening, could you review? I'd like to get this out this week while the topic is still being hotly debated. I want folks to at least have facts.

Thank you!
