Melissa,

They are especially interested in Border counties.

I don't have time to do the analysis, but the only other Urban (NOT rural) Border county we can compare ourselves to is Hidalgo. The other closest one (that I can tell) on the Border is Cameron, which is half our size and the salaries represent that (County Judge makes $64k, commissioners $46k, population is 417,276).

They should not compare us to rural counties or counties with significantly smaller populations, but I bet they will do just that.

Team:

KVIA is doing (another) story on the salary increases.

Brenda de Anda, the news director, is wanting to work on a story basically claiming that the county comparisons are not legitimate because they have a higher tax base, higher population, etc. than El Paso.

I told them to look at Hidalgo as an example – another border county whose salaries are higher than ours.

Melissa, they may be contacting you for further information.
